The psychometric properties of an instrument for the assessment of nutritional status in patients with a complex care needs. The study objective was to present the development and psychometric properties of a new instrument for nutritional assessment of patients with complex care needs (PONS). A cross-sectional design was used, with data collection performed in hospital and home care patients. The study sample included 734 patients aged 18-90 years. Eight healthcare professionals participated in the study to evaluate face and content validity, the first version of the questionnaire (PONS-V1), inter-rater reliability and internal consistency. The final version (PONS-V2) was presented to a sample of 209 patients, who were asked to complete the questionnaire, and the internal consistency was calculated. Exploratory and confirmatory factor analyses were used to test the construct validity. The same professionals completed the version, and inter-rater reliability was calculated. The PONS showed adequate construct validity and internal consistency. The mean total score was 32.7 (SD = 13.0), with a range from 0-64 points. All items and domains showed internal consistency (Cronbach's alpha = 0.70-0.98), with a variance coefficient of between 0.33 and 0.92. PONS-V2 is a self-report, easy-to-use instrument that can assess nutritional status. Results of this study indicate that the PONS can be used as a tool for both research and clinical practice. ## What's New In?

The Player is a classical casino game in which you win real money. The rules are very simple: each player is given three cards and they can either bet or raise. The more you bet, the higher the bet limits are. You can choose from four categories (Red, Black, White and Green) and the more you win, the more bets you can place. However, you lose every time you place a bet too high, as the casino can choose to eliminate you from the game. Loan Manager is a simple to use application dedicated to helping you record and monitor the loans you offer to customers. If you run a financial business that deals with loans, this program can help you create a database of clients and manage their payments. Customer management made easy Loan Manager features a clear-cut interface and allows you to access its functions from the tabs at the top of the window. Additional tools, specific to each function can be found in the toolbar at the bottom of the window. You can easily add new customers or edit the information on the existing clients with a simple mouse click. The dedicated tab displays the loans made by the currently selected customer in a table and their contact data in the panel on the right. To switch to a different customer, you can click the designated button from the toolbar and view the entire list of contacts. Add and monitor loans Loan Manager allows you to add and edit information for each client in the database, based on which transactions they perform. For instance, you can record new loans, calculate the debt, extract partial payments or extend the due date. The Loan tab is where you can easily observe all the current transactions and their status. The application acts as a bookkeeping tool, therefore all changes made in your account must be recorded manually. It does not import bank statements and it does not allow you to make changes in the actual bank account. However, it is a reliable business management application that facilitates data organizing. Print payment slips and manage administrative aspects Loan Manager allows you to easily print payment slips for each loan you handle. You can filter the printing sources and thus process only partial payments, checked-out loans, extended dates or the loans recorded on a particular date. Moreover, the program allows you to create several users with various permissions so that other employees may also manage the loans' statuses.
