I want to abuse DDoS attacks in order to get a huge amount of data to do a neural network over. I want to get a very big amount of data to train my network. Can I use a DDoS generator that's the same as the real ones, or should I create an entirely new one? A: Should I create a new DDoS generator? Yes. Is it possible to use a regular DDoS generator? Yes, if you use an unprotected connection you will likely break things. Is it possible to use a DDoS generator that's the same as the real ones? No. Any DDoS generator has a level of randomness that makes them unique. Can I use the same DDoS method for the Internet and for my botnet? That is impossible. Will the botnet send UDP packets instead of IP packets? Yes. I want to do a neural network over a huge amount of data, and I want the botnet to be slow. Then you need a botnet that only sends UDP packets. Will UDP packets freeze my botnet? Yes. Will UDP packets break the botnet? Yes. Should I run a botnet that only sends UDP packets to IP addresses that I have registered? Yes. Johannes Grenz Johannes Grenz (born 1 November 1994) is a German cyclist riding for. In some cities, ambulance paramedics make contact with an emergency medical technician (EMT) first, whereas in others paramedics make contact directly with a physician at the scene of an emergency medical need. The reasons for these different practices are unknown. The purpose of this study was to compare the timeliness and accuracy of ambulance monitoring and evaluation during an 18-month period in the same city. A total of 2455 patients were monitored and evaluated by paramedics in a rural city with a population of 82,000 in which physician monitoring and evaluation was available. The group of patients monitored and evaluated by paramedics was compared with patients in the same city who had been evaluated and monitored by EMTs (n=8967). Data were collected prospectively. All patients underwent evaluation by a physician. Paramedics in the study population were called to a scene of a car or pedestrian injury in an average of 22% of the cases; in contrast, a call to the site of a motor vehicle crash was made in only 4% of cases. The paramedics in the study population arrived at the scene of an injury within a mean of 1.03 minutes and were still there at the time of hospital admission. The patients monitored and evaluated by paramedics in the study population were more likely to have a diagnosis of a severe injury and more likely to have a Glasgow Coma Scale score at the time of hospital admission of 13 or 14 than patients who had been evaluated and monitored by EMT 3e33713323
