Wednesday, June 16, 2011 Fish is Fish! I have been anticipating my trip to California this month and was wondering what to do with my very good friend, an armload of snappers and market fish I purchased at the Tarpon Springs Fishesmart on Tuesday, June 8. After getting their official release paperwork done at Aquarium of the Pacific, I loaded them into the back of the truck with a large cooler full of ice and drove them to Santa Monica. Unfortunately, the route had us passing by the Mariner's Wharf, where the fish I purchased were displayed on a long table with their bills covered. "Oh no!" I thought, "I hope one of them didn't die on the way." Upon arrival I was surprised by the size of the fish. At first I thought they were a little undersized, but then I realized they were the size as advertised on the market. I also noticed they were brimming with big eyes and bulging gills. These fish just had to be caught, and I rushed to unload the truck and load them into a 55-gallon drum. The only bad news was that my cooler wouldn't
