What's New In?

Archives for June 2007 The Bachmann-Strauss Foundation grants will enable the creation of multi-project partnerships that can leverage tax-exempt foundations and other sources of support to address community needs and concerns. The 2004 Post Election debacle and the 2006 Midterm elections have left many to question the effectiveness of the U.S. electoral process. "We have just finished an electoral reform project in the nation's capital. I believe that both the Congressional and the Presidential elections need to be reformed," says

H.E. John R. White, Director of The Bachmann-Strauss Foundation. "H.E. White's work with the Bachmann-Strauss Foundation is enabling us to make a difference that touches many lives," says Gheorghe Buda, J.D., chief executive officer of the International Organization of Good Governance. The Grammy Awards are coming up again, and this time the ceremony's theme is the environment. The Bachmann-Strauss Foundation has earmarked a portion of its 2007-08 grants to green initiatives. All awards will require a minimum $500,000 commitment in order for programs to qualify. The partners, the United Nations Foundation, and the Carnegie United States Trust, are funding the initiative. The United Nations Foundation raised the $10 million in corporate, foundation and individual contributions required for the project. Carnegie United States Trust played a major role by serving as the fiscal sponsor for the project. The foundation's 2007-2008 grants awards are coming into place and more grantees are expected to emerge from its website by the end of July. The U.S. PIRG Education Fund has partnered with the Non-Partisan Voter Education Committee to provide voter guides to U.S. Senators and Representatives who are currently up for re-election. The guides can be used as formal policy documents, or a more informal way to provide voters with the key issues of each candidate's record. The Bachmann-Strauss Foundation grants will enable the National Coalition for Hispanic Health to continue its work to ensure that all U.S. citizens have access to high-quality, affordable health insurance.Q: How to exclude header files from the list of documents? My question is similar to this one, but I want to exclude header files from the document-based search in Eclipse.
