```
@Html.TextBox("txtCreditCardNumber", String.Empty) The user typed value and click Update in the view. After clicking Update a value will be returned from the textbox. That value should be associated with the credit card number. This is my model: public class CreditCardModel { public string txtCreditCardNumber { get; set; } public string txtCreditCardType { get; set; } public string txtCreditCardNumber1 { get; set; } public string txtCreditCardNumber2 { get; set; } public string txtCreditCardNumber3 { get; set; } } A: You could do that with the using page model binder. But because you are not binding from a form element you will need to do some custom mapping. Using a separate html input you could map the value of your textbox to a property in your model.

```
@Html.TextBoxFor(x => x.Address, new { data_bind = "value: AddressProperty", data_val = "1" data_text = "Address" }) public class CreditCardModel { public string AddressProperty { get; set; } public string CreditCardNumber { get; set; } // 648931e174
